POLITICAL CHANGES LOOM IN CAPITOL

Lobbying by Committee-men Denounced by F.D.R.; Reforms Planned

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A range of political party changes that may widely alter the national capital's accustomed line-up today gathered momentum in various quarters.

President Roosevelt, at the instance of James A. Farley, is seeking a new chairman for the Democratic national committee. No immediate shift appeared imminent, but Farley has indicated he would retire as party chairman when a successor is found in order to devote more time to his postmaster generalship.

On Capitol hill, the President's denunciation of lobbying by national committee-men today had developed into a wave of political reform spirit that promised quick consideration of corrective legislation.

Measure Before Senate

The senate had before it a measure to prevent members of either national party committee from practicing before government departments. Other bills to carry the reform still further were under consideration.

Senator Steiwer (R. Ore.) said he would seek early action on a bill he had introduced to prevent party conventions from being loaded with political appointees. Another senator was drafting a bill to prevent members of congress from lobbying before government departments.

Legislation may also arise from a resolution by Senator Norris (R. Neb.) that he was opposed to the "captain of the national committee" as a party boss.

Would Strengthen Chances

He has been advised, the paper says, that he would be in a much stronger position for the nomination and in the campaign for the election if he were out of party leadership. Besides giving up the post of national chairman, he is now planning to resign as New York state chairman.

The Times declares Farley will retire from the latter post at the next meeting of the Democratic committee or that he will not be a candidate for re-election by the new state committee, which will be chosen at the primary in September.

Salem Cagers Beat Alliance For Seventh Consecutive Win

Aviators Put Up Stubborn Battle, But Bow When Salem Flashes Strong Attack Late In Fray

Allowing their foe but one field goal in the entire contest, Salem High basketballers registered their seventh consecutive victory as they defeated Alliance High today, 21-12, in a hard-fought, rough battle marked by brilliant defensive play of both teams here Friday night.

The triumph enabled the Quaker squad to take undisputed possession of first place in the Northeastern Ohio Big Ten league, a circuit in which the unbeaten lads of Herbert Brown are conceded a great chance to cap championship laurels this year.

Alliance, victorious in but two out of ten starts this season and the loser in six consecutive frays, battled the vaunted Salem machine to a standstill throughout most of the fray in which hard playing of members of both squads brought out an over-abundance of fouls, a total of 28 being called by Referee O. V. Boone of Canton, former East Liverpool athletic coach. The great, smooth-functioning offense that so brilliantly characterized the performance of the Salem team in past frays was unable to click in face of the visitors' fine defense and the battle developed into a contest of defenses.

COURT DEBATES DR. ALICE'S FATE

State Insists She Be Tried Despite Her Sickness

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—The fate of Dr. Alice Wynkoop accused of slaying her daughter-in-law, Rheta, apparently hung in the balance today while the state made plans to insist that her trial for murder be finished regardless of her illness.

"If we don't try her now, we won't be able to try her ever," said assistant state's attorney, Charles S. Dougherty, in charge of the prosecution of the elderly defendant in the operating table death mystery.

The prosecutor said that regardless of the findings of three physicians named by Judge Joseph B. David to examine Dr. Wynkoop, the state would oppose a defense motion to withdraw a juror and declare a mistrial. The court, however, has said that the case would be halted if it can be shown that its continuation will endanger Dr. Wynkoop's life.

Two of the physicians, Dr. Arthur Byfield, named to represent the court, and Dr. William D. McNally representing the state agreed that Dr. Wynkoop is ill. Dr. Byfield said she was "not feeling ill" and described her as "a very sick woman."

The third physician, Dr. Frank Chauvet, appointed for the defense, declined to comment.

Dr. Wynkoop's ailment was described as a very serious heart condition, complicated by hardening of the arteries.

The prosecutor, however, took the position that the very nature of her illness demanded that the case go to the jury.

No Diphtheria or Smallpox In Salem

A total of 262 births and 194 deaths occurred in Salem during the year 1933, Dr. R. T. Holzbach, city commissioner, announced in his annual report today.

The city had 145 cases of communicable diseases during the year, the commissioner reported, but, added, in spite of the community's nearness to Youngstown and Mahoning county, where epidemics prevailed in both diseases, Salem had no cases of either small pox or diphtheria during the entire 12 months.

Vaccinations for small pox were administered to 463 Salem children. There were 83 cases of whooping cough, 28 of scarlet fever, seven of tuberculosis, four of influenza and measles and one of typhoid fever.

The board of health, Holzbach related, functioned within 75 percent of its budget during the year.

Dr. Holzbach also submitted his health report for December, listing 19 deaths and 15 births. There were 14 new communicable diseases reported during the month.

In connection with a new plan for the disposition of garbage in Salem, Holzbach announced that any Salem person interested in the collection of garbage in the city by contract should submit a proposition to the health board before its February meeting.

The board has requested a legal ruling from the state as to its jurisdiction in the collection and disposition of garbage.

Silver In Safety Post Next Week

Homer M. Silver, Salem "dollar-a-year" safety director appointee, will take his new office some time next week. Mayor Norman Phillips announced today.

Silver will succeed John R. Kerr. The mayor reported that Kerr today is completing arrangements for bond and will qualify for the post early next week.

County Will Hold Hop, Corn Meetings

Places and dates of meetings for discussing the corn and hog contracts have been announced by Floyd Lower, Lisbon county agent.

The first one will be at 1:30 p. m. next Wednesday at Unity grange hall and on the same day at 8 p. m. a second meeting will be at Wayne township grange hall.

Other meetings scheduled are: Thursday, Jan. 25, 8 p. m., Fairfield centralized school; Friday, Jan. 26, 1:30 p. m., Christian church, New Alexandria; Saturday, Jan. 27 at 1:30 p. m., court room No. 1, Lisbon. At 8 p. m., Hanover school building.

Want School Funds

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20.—A campaign for revenue sufficient to keep all Ohio schools open will be waged by the American Legion and auxiliary organizations.

Thomas McCaw, state commander, said posts in each county will be asked to appeal to their legislative representatives.

FATHER PLEADS TO BRING BACK KIDNAPED SON

"Money Is Nothing", Says Bremer Family—"Only Bring Him Back"

NO CONTACT WITH ABDUCTORS MADE

Milk-Wagon Driver Last To See Victim Before Kidnaping

(By Associated Press)
ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 20.—A mystery note, declaring Edward G. Bremer, abducted for $200,000 ransom had been "bumped off" was received through the mails today by W. C. Robertson, Minneapolis postmaster.

Written in longhand by a good penman, the note said: "Very sorry but Edward Bremer is now resting in peace. Was by accident bumped off. Body near Anoka, Minn. Will not be found until after the snow goes, contact all off. Please forgive us. All a mistake by one of our gang being drunk. Please tell Walter Magee, St. Paul.

"One of the Gang."

Master Weingart Names Committees Of Goshen Grange

Committees for the year were announced by Master Clarence Weingart at a meeting of Goshen grange Friday evening at the hall, northwest of Salem. They are:

Social—Mrs. William Fogg, Mrs. Zoe Ingram, Mrs. Otis Rhodes, Mrs. Charles Venable.

Literary—Mrs. Elizabeth Pow, Mrs. Albert Hasmall, Ernest Kampfer, relief—Mrs. T. R. Carr, Mrs. L. C. Starbuck, Mrs. Harry Shinn.

Auditing—W. P. Sangree, William Fogg, Mrs. L. E. Walters; welcoming—Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Carr, Harry Shinn, Charles Mead, T. R. Carr.

Honorary—Mrs. Roy Ewing, degree team captain, Miss Naami Shinn; press agent, L. C. Starbuck.

This program was given: Talk, "Home Butcherer of Beef," Otis Rhodes; song, Goshen quartet, composed of W. P. Sangree, William Venable, L. E. Walters, Miss Ruth Venable; talk, "Home Canning of Meats," Mrs. Otis Rhodes.

In a baby picture guessing contest Robert Champion received the prize offered for the best looking picture, and Miss Naomi Shinn won the honors for guessing the largest number of names correctly.

At a meeting in two weeks Goshen grange will give a lecture hour's program and at the same time present to this grange the banner won by Mahoning county Ponca grange, at the state meeting.

This banner will be taken to each grange in the county during the coming 12 months.

Edith Starbuck, Sara Berry and Priscilla Berry had part on the program at a meeting of the juvenile grange.

Music Is Feature At Mt. Nebo Meeting

William Maple, Kensington, "singing underleap," entertained with groups of songs at a meeting of the Mt. Nebo Community club Friday evening at Mt. Nebo grange hall, Salem-Lisbon rd. Approximately 150 persons attended.

Misses Martha and Hazel Falcen, Salem, played a group of selections on stringed instruments, and Misses Mable and Myrtle Burback and their brother, Leslie, sang a group of songs. Leslie played the accompaniment on a guitar.

Two plays were given on the program, "Jack Holden Gets a Jolt" written by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McPherson and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wallace, while the characters in "It Paid to Advertise" were H. V. Zimmerman, Mrs. Roscoe Halverstadt, daughter, Nana, and son, Robert, Mrs. Samuel Cook and Mrs. Frank Simmons.

At the business session officers were named for the year. They are: President, Clyde Aldridge; vice president, Samuel Cook; secretary, Carl Bailey; treasurer, Frank Zimmerman.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled for April 11.

Officers Elected By Salona Supply

The Salona Supply company at its annual meeting re-elected J. G. Pin president and Frank Puits secretary-treasurer. Clifton Hall was named vice president.

The annual report discloses a satisfactory profit for the year 1933. The volume of sales was somewhat lower than the high point reached a few years ago but operating expenses have been reduced to compare with present day trends. E. E. Bower, manager for several years, has been retained for another year.

This company, a farmers' cooperative unit, was organized in 1913 and has made an enviable record in dividends paid to stockholders and service to customers.

Exonerate Webber In East Palestine

Arthur Webber of Unity, alleged to have struck and beaten Aubrey Justison, of Sebring in a fight at Webber's home early Thursday morning, Friday was exonerated by East Palestine authorities.

Webber submitted evidence showing that the fight resulted after he had requested Justison to leave his home and the latter refused. The fight then ensued.

Justison is in the Salem City hospital suffering from cuts and bruises.

Limits Judges

CLEVELAND, Jan. 20.—A report holding that judges cannot suspend the sentence of a person committed to the workhouse was approved after a long debate by a majority of municipal judges. State examiners had reported that the jurists suspend hundreds of sentences illegally.

It was a matter of conjecture whether the judges would abide by the report.

Bremer Home, Figures In $200,000 Kidnaping Plot

Above, the home of Edward G. Bremer, kidnaping banker, of St. Paul, Minn. Below, left, W. W. Magee, close friend of the victim, who received a telephone call telling him where to find the ransom note which demanded $200,000 and threatening death to Bremer if the police were notified. ## LEADER IN M. E. CHURCH IS DEAD

Mrs. S. B. Salmon, 63, Succumbs At Home In Mansfield

Mrs. Alice Claudia Thomas Salmon, 63, wife of Dr. E. B. Salmon, D. D., pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Mansfield, died this morning at her home, her cousin, Mrs. William Arbuthnot, East State st., has been advised. Death followed an illness of five months.

Mrs. Salmon, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Thomas, was born at Ironton, O. Before her marriage in 1901, she taught in Mt. Union college, Alliance.

Prior to going to Mansfield three years ago, Mrs. Salmon lived in Cleveland, where her husband was pastor of a Methodist church.

During the period Dr. Salmon was superintendent of the Canton district, which at that time included the Salem church, the family lived at Alliance. Mrs. Salmon was superintendent of the Sunday school of the First Methodist church, Alliance, at one time, and also taught a class of young men at that school.

She was secretary of the Women's Missionary society of the North-eastern Ohio conference at one time.

Mrs. Salmon was well known in Salem and had friends here.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one sister, Mrs. Agnes Morris Toledo, and one brother, Rev. William A. Thomas, Mays Landing, N. J.

The funeral service will be held at 11 a. m. Monday at Mansfield. Interment will be at 4 p. m. Monday at the Alliance City cemetery. There will be a service at the grave.

May Ask Back Pay

CLEVELAND, Jan. 20.—Where the president's re-employment agreement has been violated, restitution of back wages may be demanded as a condition for the retention of the Blue Eagle.

Authority for this action was given by NRA officials in Washington to Charles A. Ott, chairman of the Cleveland compliance board.

Student Takes Life

TOLEDO, Jan. 20.—A bullet wound, self-inflicted when he was ordered to return to school over his objections, resulted in the death last night of Allen Snyder, 19, high school student of nearby Waterville.

ELKS CLUB WILL SERVE TURK SOUP FREE TONIGHT TO MEMBERS.

Three Daughters Of Chief Guarded

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20.—Safe-guards were set about the three daughters of Chief of Police Fred Kundt today after Mrs. Kundt received a mystery telephone call which threatened harm to them.

Mrs. Kundt said a man's voice informed her she "had better persuade Mr. Kundt to resign or I would be sorry." He said "the children may go to school some day and not return." I did not tell Mr. Kundt at first because he had enough on his mind. The official charges before the civil service commission by Safety Director C. G. Williams. Friends disclosed that several months ago, an attempt was made to lure the eldest daughter, Mary, 16, from her classes with a fake call that her mother was sick. Suspicious teachers called the Kundts home and found out Mrs. Kundt was not ill and that she had not asked the girl be sent home.

The other daughters are Christine 13, and Catherine, 10.

Will Show Latest In Hair Dressing

Latest modes of dressing the hair will be paraded before spectators at the annual Columbiana county hair-dressers' ball which will be the attraction at the Rainbow Gardens Monday night.

Prizes, in cash and merchandise totaling $125, will be awarded during the hair dress competition in which models and emcees from beauty shoppes throughout the county will compete.

Donald Britton, Youngstown expert, will be the judge.

Dancing will be another feature of the event which is scheduled to get under way at 9. The hair dress contest is scheduled promptly at 10:30.

The public is invited to the ball.

Resume Labelle's Hearing on Monday

(By Associated Press)
YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 20.—Trial of Fred A. Labelle on a charge of embezzling $4,500 from the Mahoning valley sanitary district will be resumed Monday after adjournment yesterday while defense counsel was reading a deposition by Mrs. Wilhelmina Wittigshlager, of Bremen, Germany, Labelle's mother; that she had given her son $61,000 in currency over a period of years.

Of this sum, the deposition said $43,000 was for Labelle personally, and $18,000 for a David Fleischman, whom Mrs. Wittigshlager had reared, and who was "in trouble" at the time.

They Were Hungry

NEWCOMERTOWN, Jan. 20.—There were no prizes, but they couldn't have been this hungry.

Clinton Turrell ate three quarts of ice cream, waited 45 minutes, and then consumed a steak dinner. At another table Charles Foust disposed of 23 "hot dogs".

COUNCIL TAKES STEPS TO PUSH CITY PROJECT

Financial Measures Are Discussed At Special Meeting

ANOTHER SESSION BILLED TUESDAY

E. Liverpool, Wellsville Street Jobs Halted Temporarily

Despite orders issued by federal CWA authorities reducing employment quotas and slashing the week from 20 to 24 hours, members of Salem city council Friday night completed arrangements under which they plan to construct a new power plant at the city's waterworks.

Announcement was made today by E. M. Lowry, county CWA director that, inasmuch as the majority of northern Columbiana county cities, villages and townships had never reached the old quota, the cut ordered by the state will not have any effect in this city but two street projects, one in East Liverpool and one in Wellsville, employing several hundred men, have been temporarily halted.

The southern county cities were over the old quotas set by the state, Lowry reported.

Funds From Waterworks

Members of the finance and lighting committees of council met with Mayor Norman Phillips, Auditor Karl L. Webster, Service Director Charles T. Kennedy and City Engineer F. S. Barkhoff in their special session last night. President of Council James E. Britt presided.

Discussions were held concerning the city's financial condition and the decision was reached whereby funds to provide for the city's share of the project will be taken out of the waterworks department.

Final Legislation Will Be Enacted

When council members meet in another special session Tuesday night, the project will be sent to the state CWA at Columbus for approval immediately after passage of the ordinance by council, officials said today.

Will Check County

A complete check of the number of men employed in all sections of the county will be made by Lowry's office. A total of 3,225 men were at work throughout the county Friday necessitating the immediate lay-off, which it is hoped, will be only temporary, of 351 men.

Held In Murder

DAYTON, O., Jan. 20.—Mihall Muceri, 34, was charged with second degree murder in two indictments for the slaying of Joseph Kruges and Kruges' wife, Julia.

Not Much News

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 20.—Plenty of headlines today, but not much news.

"Congress votes on the 60-cent dollar Saturday." Wonder if they will have one in there as an exhibit.

"Government undecided about what they can do with Japanese taking pictures of fortifications." Makes you agree to send us some of the pictures if they turn out O. K.

"Cuba hails new president." Hails him with what?

EMBARRASSMENT

The reason which the White House has hinted for the forced separation of politics and law in Washington is good enough to stand until a better one is offered. National committees who are practicing law in the capital have proved embarrassing to President Roosevelt. They must be either politicians or barristers, but not both at the same time.

Further than that, the country probably will not be permitted to know why an action indicative of subterranean conflict in the administration has been taken. Obviously, the President must have considered that the end is worth the means. An appearance of trouble now will be less harmful than the effect of permitting the source of the trouble to remain untouched.

The relation between politics and law is inextricably close. In other administrations lawyers who have appeared to be national committees have been permitted to perform both functions under the eye of their party's chief. The situation fomented rumors of back door influence, but they were not scotched by any such positive action as Mr. Roosevelt has taken.

It is well to remember in connection with this interesting policy that the President is credited with possessing an unusually keen sense of political management. Perhaps that sense has warned him that in a time when the government is handling unprecedentedly large sums of public money there is unusual temptation for all agents of government.

More than luck will be required to enable the Roosevelt administration to escape without being charged with mismanagement in part of the enormous sums it has been authorized to spend. One precaution now may be worth a hundred explanations in a few more years. Fortunately, there are indications that President Roosevelt is aware of the danger. His announcement that lawyer-politicians of his party in Washington are persona non grata is reassuring.

PRESSURE

The chief effect of disappearing CWA funds is to demonstrate the impossibility of stopping a policy of public employment once it has been started, without providing an adequate substitute. That effect will be felt in congress, which must consider the question of a further appropriation for civil works.

It is not unlikely that CWA officials are creating as much pressure as possible to show the necessity for making the largest possible appropriation with the greatest possible speed. Information that rates and hours are to be cut to make the present fund last until the date of its expiration, Feb. 15, has been an electric shock to every community whose relief burden has been lightened by CWA activities.

As long as the federal government's credit can be maintained and as long as unemployment continues, there will exist this drain on public funds. President Roosevelt expressed the hope in his opening message to congress that it might be decreased steadily as the recovery program began to show effect on employment, but that was a thought for next summer. The immediate necessity, as the administration sees it, is for an appropriation sufficiently large to insure continuance of the program in its present form. A considerable body of public opinion, while strongly backing the main idea of the CWA program, holds that any plan for its continued operation should provide safeguards against wasteful expenditures. Certain CWA practices which have been revealed do not add to public confidence, and a great deal of the program's success depends on maintenance of that confidence.

The need for quick action is necessary, because a devastating breakdown in popular morale would follow any prolonged suspension of the gigantic employment project that has brought earning power and renewed hope to thousands of American homes.

New York Day by Day

By G. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. — In the dark of the moon, as it were, my wife and I have been plucking flowers from the garden of memory. One we loved, her mother, has been lowered gently to rest on the river-bend brow of a snow-capped hill overlooking scenes of our Ohio childhood. And we feel strangely forlorn.

Most of our married life she has been a member of the household, traveling with us to Europe and every section of America, a complete refutation of the mother-in-law joke. To us she was "Mud," an endearing term, but fraught with the tenderest affection.

There is a pardonable pride in revealing that with such close association not a single harsh word ever passed between us. When I stumbled and fell, I took my bruises to her instead of deserved scorn, she had that magnificent compassion that seems only the essence of motherhood.

When we saw her begin to fail, she had lived 79 healthful years. In her final year she pined for the last illusion with a fortitude memory will never dim. In a lucid flicker out of comatose, her last words were a mumbled half sigh for "being such a bother."

To our friends she was "Aunt Kate," soft voiced and with snow-white hair and the pink complexion of a healthy girl. Until after 60, she had rarely been beyond the confines of her native Ohio. Yet she adjusted herself to a cosmopolitanism with no dilution of the charm of those clustered years on the ivy-clad porch of a small community.

Notable wordings such as "Fraser Hunt, Floyd Gibbons, Irvin Cobb, Raymond Dickson, Tommy Milard, Carl Seitz, Courtney Rivley Cooper, Harry Silver, Will and Mike Hogg would drop in to see "Aunt Kate" and sit for hours. They found refreshment in her gentle philosophies so sharply in contrast to blusters of the world. There was little in modern literature or the classics she could not discuss. She read the Bible daily and often right books a week, most of the periodicals and was abreast current topics.

And now that she has passed from mortal sight, so many remembered scenes blow across the peaceful pastures of the "Aunt Kate" seemed to nurture. About them, somehow, cling mingled aromas of dog fennel, smart weed, golden rod, wild roses, honeysuckle. The scent of a half asleep but serenely contented town.

From the coolly arbored recesses of "Aunt Kate's" porch we see men from the furniture factory going from work. Nearly all would call to her "Good evenin', Mrs. Small." This was almost her sole contact with life's hurly.

Of course there were more leisurely wayfarers who passed along State street at intervals. Editor Will Sibbey, who wrote "The French Five Hundred." Lawyer Hollis Johnston, George Bowie, Capt. Ed Maddy, Mr. Dages, who lived in the big brick house on the corner, wore a high silk hat and puttered among his roses. He was Mr. Dages, as Ring Lardner might say, "Joe Sheline, manufacturing people. Joe Sheline, the town's tragic, quarried out of all work with his wheelbarrow. He lived across the creek near the Le Blanc peach orchard and grubbed so desperately to educate his 11 children. Duke Robinson, the colored barber. Mr. Wetherholt, the undertaker.

Evenings always took on a mild carnival tint on maple shaded State street. Neighbors and their children sprang up to sit on porches and watch those out driving go by. It was a sartorial simplicity "Aunt Kate" never abandoned. There is a species legend that wine, no matter how long casked, remains always in rapport with its native vineyard.

When vine yards flower each year, the barred vintage fumes and bubbles. A chemical heredity. The analogy is that every sundown of her life in the city "Aunt Kate" followed the back yard custom of "dressing up." Her porch became an apartment house window. I've wondered if metropolitan strangers did not become to her Mr. Dages, Capt. Maddy, Mr. Wetherholt and Joe Sheline.

In her tired trembling hand between the leaves of "Anthony Adverse" the last book she read we found the day after her removal to the hospital, this copied line from "The Song of Songs" in the Old Testament: "For lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone."

NEW ORLEANS—Shipping here for the last six months of 1933 was 1,331,320 tons, a 13 per cent increase over the same period in 1932, according to reports of local shipping agencies and the local board.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Facts About the "Breathing Apparatus"

FREQUENT REFERENCE is made to the importance of the "respiratory system." I wonder how many are familiar with what actually constitutes this vital system of our bodies.

The respiratory system is the "breathing apparatus" and neglect or carelessness in regard to disorders of this mechanism is dangerous. By its operation, we inhale air from the atmosphere and obtain the oxygen it contains. The oxygen is carried to the blood through the vessels of the lungs and serves to purify the blood.

When we exhale we breathe out the impurities, especially carbon dioxide. Together with the food we eat, this process supplies the elements necessary for proper growth and development.

Respiratory Tracts. The breathing device begins at the nose and ends in the vast number of air cells which make up the major portion of the lungs. For convenience, it is divided into two parts; the upper respiratory tract, and the lower respiratory tract. The former consists of the nose and throat; the latter is made up of the voice-box or larynx, the trachea or windpipe and the bronchial tubes located in the lungs.

When we inspire or breathe in, the air passes through the nose where it is filtered or cleaned by the fine hairs located in each nostril. The air is warmed as it passes over the moist lining of the nose. By these wise provisions cold and unclean air is prevented from reaching the delicate membranes of the bronchi and lungs.

"Mouth Breathers." You will see that when the air passes through the mouth, as it does in "mouth breathers," these important adjustments are not made. For this reason sufferers from nasal obstruction are more subject to colds and coughs. In addition, interference with free breathing permits the accumulation of carbon dioxide in the blood. The oxygen is inadequate and the normal expansion of the lungs is not accomplished.

Any neglect of the respiratory system encourages disease in some part of the tract. Colds, nasal sinus disease, tonsillitis, grippe, "flu" and other respiratory diseases are encouraged by this neglect. Lowered resistance to the common infectious diseases naturally follows and they are more prone frequently in persons who have some nasal defect. Flat chest and other deformities may be traced to faulty breathing.

Such defects as twisting of the partition or thickening of the internal tissues in the nose, require immediate correction of normal breathing and good health are to be expected. In children adenoids and diseased tonsils should be removed. Bear in mind that proper breathing is a protection against disease.

Answers to Health Queries. Mrs. E. O. H. Q.—What can be done for a child who always becomes "car sick"? Is there anything that could be taken beforehand to relieve this tendency?

A.—First of all make sure that the child's system is clear. Do not take the child out driving directly after a meal, and avoid long drives. For further particulars send a self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

N. L. M. Q.—What do you advise for poor elimination?

A.—Correct your diet and drink plenty of water between meals. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

Mrs. H. H. Q.—My husband, who is forty years of age, breaks into a severe sweat, once or twice every night. What would cause this condition and what treatment will overcome it?

A.—It would be well to have him examined so that definite advice can be given. Nervousness, a run down state of health, a possible weakness of the lungs, are all apt to cause this symptom. The treatment depends upon the exact cause of the trouble.

A Reader. Q.—Can tuberculosis be contracted by kissing a tubercular patient?

A.—Yes, if the sputum contains germs.

Twenty Years Ago

(Issue of Jan. 20, 1914)

Stockholders of the Citizens Ice company held a meeting Tuesday afternoon and re-elected the directors for another year. It was decided that there will be no increase in the cost of ice the coming season. E. W. Silver is president of the company.

William Carey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Carey, this city, a recent graduate of the agricultural department of Ohio State university, has been chosen official tester for the Salem Cow Testing association and will begin work Monday.

Libson—John S. McNutt, Salem, has been elected president of the People's State bank. He succeeded William H. Hepburn, who resigned. McNutt is former state clerk of courts.

C. R. Baker, Cleveland, former Salem business man, will give a talk on "Salesmanship" at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday evening, Jan. 27.

A party of Salem people, among them Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Silver, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brush, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Silver, Mrs. H. A. Walton and Mrs. C. S. Carr, left Wednesday morning for Cleveland, where they will hear Harry Lauder, famous Scotch tenor, and his all-star company at the Hippodrome.

Miss Edna Vaughn, McKinley Ave., entertained a group of friends Tuesday evening. Winners in the card games were Miss Helen Chalfant, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Weber and Arthur Stark.

Joseph Turner, New York City, who has been in the west for the last month, spent Tuesday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Turner, Ohio ave., enroute east.

For Sunday, January 21. Sunday's horoscope is interpreted as of far-reaching influence on the life, as a radical change is indicated fortified by a stabilizing effect on the fortunes and future affairs generally. Able and kindly friends will be found ready to assist substantially in practical and worth while propositions.

Those whose birthday it is will find a year of excellent opportunities, quite unexpected, and of such direct force as to complicate the future destinies.

A child born on this day should rise to fine position in life by its industry, energy, originality and skill as well as its personal popularity and good grace.

Notable nativity: Stonewall Jackson, soldier.

For Monday, January 22. Monday's astrological forecast is based on inimical lunar transits that portend deceit, treachery, slander, intrigue and a kindred train of sinister and sordid events. This may enter into the employment as well as business affairs, particularly in transactions with mergers, rings, or secret bodies, or in quiet agreements.

Those whose birthday it is should be prepared for a year of probable deceit, treachery, malice and subtle attack from most unsuspected sources.

A child born on this day may be clever, shrewd of craft, fond of the peculiar, mystical or it may be visionary.

Notable nativity: Lord Byron, poet.

MARION, Jan. 1.—Two local o-e-ganizations have completed plans for public balls to be held Jan. 20 as a part of a nationwide observance of President Roosevelt's birthday anniversary. Proceeds will go to the Warm Springs, Ga., foundation for treatment of infantile paralysis.

HOLY TRINITY LUTHERAN

East State st. at Woodland ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor.

Transfiguration Sunday, Sunday school 9:45 (Matthew 4:12-25). Paul Wilms, supt.

The work and ministry of Jesus Christ is unique in every way. It has no rival in blessing to the human race. It was a blessing to mankind that our Lord did proclaim. The Gospel of salvation that was a light for that generation and for all time. The blessing continued in the teaching work of Christ. The many difficult doctrines of religion were made clear and understandable by His simplicity of speech and earnestness of purpose.

The living of broken bodies showed the interest of God in the physical well-being of His creatures. Hospitals and medical care have received a strong impetus from this merciful work of the Great Physician. The servants of Christ are truly to carry on His blessed ministry in our day.

Morning worship, 11, sermon, "Listening to God."

"The sense of hearing is to be used to get information acknowledge to the mind of man. It is to be a channel through which understanding of the outside world is brought to the innerman. God likewise seeks to get the attention of man through his perceptive powers. The command from heaven is that we are to hear the message of Christ, the Son of God. There is much to hear in these busy days, but there is nothing so important that the message and Gospel of Christ should be crowded out of our minds.

"Much that is valuable to man may be lost because it falls upon closed ears or indifferent minds. It is likewise true that no matter how beautiful and helpful may be the message of God, unless it enters into the mind of man, it will be utterly useless and valueless."

Luther league 6:30. The devotional topic is, "Choosing my Amusements." Joe Wukotich is the leader.

Lydia Bible class meets Monday 6:30, at the church with a covered supper. The topic, "Habakkuk" will be in charge of Mrs. O. D. Keister.

Wednesday evening services at 8 Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years at 9:45 a. m.

"Life" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ Scientist, on Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." (Matt. 19:17).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life." (John 5:24).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our nature is a foretaste of eternity. This exalted view, obtained and retained when the Science of being is understood, would bridge over with life discerned spiritually the interval of death, and man would be in the full consciousness of his immortality and eternal harmony, where sin, sickness, and death are unknown. Time is a mortal thought, the divisor of which is the solar year." (p. 508).

Men's Personal Work League. 191 South Broadway near Pershing. Harry Lambert, league president. B. H. Calkins, music director. Sunday afternoon meeting 2:30. Wallace Baker, vice president. The league will be our speaker. Men of all denominations are welcome. See you there.

EMMANUEL AMERICAN LUTHERAN

201 S. Broadway, Rev. John Bauer, pastor. Mr. Frank Hoprich, Sunday School superintendent.

"We preach and teach Christ crucified."

Many people have not had the opportunity to study the fundamental teachings of the Christian religion in their youth. Others feel that what they once learned needs refreshing and amplification. To supply the needs of both classes the pastor of Emmanuel church will give a series of plain heart-to-heart sermons on Christian fundamentals beginning Sunday morning, January 28, at our 10 o'clock services.

These sermons are for our own people for the sake of refreshing what they once learned in their religious instruction. We invite those who would like to become certain of the way unto salvation, which God has laid out for us. We invite those who feel that to get right with God they should also join His church on earth. The good news of salvation will be set forth as winsomely as we know how. "Come and see." There is no obligation.

Next Sunday. Sunday school and Bible class at 9 o'clock.

Divine service, English at 10 o'clock. At this service the pastor in his gripping way, will bring out the things that make for a Happy Marriage.

Divine service, German at 11 o'clock. "Fear Not: For I Have Redeemed Thee."

On Sunday evening at 6:30 Lutheran League Study Hour.

On Wednesday evening at 7:30, the regular monthly meeting of the Daughters of Emmanuel.

These ladies have done fine work for their church in the past year, and we hope they will all come out for the first meeting in the new year. The topic for study at this meeting will be "We Would See Jesus In Our Faith."

Friday evening at 7:30, choir practice.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

608 East Second st., Rev. C. L. Gardner, pastor. Harry P. Lambert, supt. Miss Edna Reed, pianist.

Men's meeting at hall, 2:30 N. Y. P. S. meeting 6:30. Contest between boys and girls. Who will win? Come and bring some one. This is for young and old.

Evening evangelistic service at 7:30. Rev. Mrs. Lydia Brantingham of Winona will preach. Sermon subject, "Ezekiel's Vision, of the Valley of Dry Bones." There will be special singing.

Cottage prayer meeting Tuesday evening at 7:30.

Midweek service Wednesday 7:30. Saturday night prayer meeting at 7:30.

CONCORD

"The church with a welcome."

Sunday school at 10:30.

Morning worship at 11:30.

Mid-week service Thursday 8.

The attendance at each of these services is steadily increasing. We are thankful for this, but are you one of those who are attending? If you are not, start this week. Come and join with us in worshipping the Lord. Rev. Gardner will preach and there will be special singing. Don't miss one of these services.

Last week there was an attendance of 35 in the midweek service. Many larger churches do not do as well, but let's not be satisfied with what has been done. Let's set out to double attendance in every service. We can do it if we will really try.

CHAPTER FIFTY-FOUR
Someone pushed Patricia before a screen. She muttered something—what, she never knew—and stood aside for Julian. Was he jealous? His voice sounded queer.
He said something about his unseen audience, said it several times. He must be nervous too.

The movie next! Camera clicking, short-sleeved man trying to sneak back the crowd. Himself making hands with Blair, who said the best man win and no need feelings either, as she said to do.

What a silly thing to say! Julian saying hands with Sanders and saying something just as silly.
Sanders stuttering a reply. Blair looked straight into the camera, as he made his little speech, trying to get the film. Was this the game stage? No, this was baloney.

George upstairs on the second floor, influential people, these, people who rated invitations. Actresses and millionaires, prize fighters and famous beauties, the much married, young blonde Ruthie Terence—or was it Ruthie Graves by now?—
George Jean Cravath, the critic
quite a break to get him here, writers, artists, press agents and public relations men, bridge experts
by the score, grinning and bearing the hullabaloo as best they could,
tired women, men in dinner
clothes.

A cop in the press rooms where typewriters were going full speed and telegraph instruments were clicking, a stop while both Blair
and Haverholt predicted a victory
and a vindication for his audience system. Haverholt lingered to speak to certain special friends
among the reporters. He cultivated friendships among the gentlemen of the press. Blair scowled. Was this stage?

Patricia saw a newspaper man yawn. Incredible! Incredible that anyone should yawn! At last the four reached the room equipped for the bridge. The players were obviously alone except for the referee and the attendants there to keep the cards in the play, the bidding of every hand.

A hand screen stretched across a dormer pierced with peepholes
showed even now with watching eyes.
The folk outside, the fortunate invited folk, were each to be allowed a turn.

"That screen," snapped Blair, obviously unstrung, "that screen gives me the creeps. Can't we close the door?"

"No sir, we can't," replied the referee quickly, courteously. It's been arranged. We can't disap-point the public."

The first hand was dealt. Behind the screen the public whispered.
A hand thought the whispering must drive her mad. She could hardly see her cards to straighten them. Hearts and diamonds were dealt hopelessly. The man stationed at her shoulder, pad and pen
in his hand, was breathing down her neck. She felt like screaming.

"Who dealt?" asked Julian Hav-erholt for the first time in his life.

He must be as shaken as herself.
He knew that Blair and the young,
dark-haired Sanders were nervous
at the breaking point. Their hands were trembling quite as much as hers. Not so much fun now, not so pleasant the knowledge that all

America was watching them!

He conservative, he conservative.
Haverholt had drummed at her. Let me do the shooting! She passed a holding that in her right mind she would most certainly have bid. It proved to be a lucky pass. Blair and Sanders were set two tricks on a four heart bid. The news was rushed outside to the visitors and to the reporters. A little cheer rose behind the screen and was promptly squashed.

Blair's look was black as he re-proved his partner. The four heart bid, it appeared, was not his fault.

"It wasn't mine," said Sanders
stiffly. "I had a bid."

"One of your rotten psyches. I guess you'd call it!"

Sanders looked like an angry
turkey cock. He shook his finger beneath his partner's nose.

"You can't talk to me like that!
I don't care who you are. I won't stand for it!"

"Well, anyhow," said Blair, subsiding slightly, "they didn't double.
That saved us something."

"Why didn't you double, Patricia?" This from Haverholt.

"I didn't think of it," she admitted faintly.

Blair forgot his grievance with his partner and gave an exultant laugh. That suited him. The next hand proved his downfall. He did what every amateur has done, what no expert is ever supposed to do.

He bid a hand in no-trump, forgot the suit he bid in, and played the hand in spades. Except for his haste of memory, he would have scored a little slam. In fact he claimed the slam.

"Play it out," said Julian softly.
"The tricks are mine. I tell you,
I trump all the losing diamonds
with dummy's spades."

"You bid the hand in no-trump?"

"You're crazy," Blair began, and saw his partner's greenish face and realized all too clearly then his terrible mistake. He made a strangled sound in his throat.

"Yes," said Julian pleasantly. "I never saw more expert misplaying.
You very kindly set up all my diamonds. That sets you—let me see—that sets you five tricks exactly.
Accept my grateful thanks."

It appeared that the bridge marathon would end right there. The referee intervened. Blair was soothed and settled in his chair. But his life would never be the same again. His self esteem had received a mortal blow. There was laughter behind the screen, jeering laughter quickly subdued. But Blair heard every echo of it. Sweat dived his forehead. His blue eyes bulged, his florid color deepened. He, Reuben
Blair, had made a dumb mistake.

Tomorrow, over breakfast tables, all
New York would learn the expert's shame.

They resumed the play. Haverholt was ecstatic. Patricia felt an inward shudder. Would it be her turn next? What, in heaven's name, had Julian led? A spade or was it a club? Blindly the girl returned her partner's lead.

The play went on and on. Blair and Sanders got the cards but those two were thoroughly demoralized. Julian and Patricia were playing badly. Their opponents were playing worse. Expert misplay, expert misbidding. Would this farce never end? Each hand, copied swiftly, was rushed to the press rooms,
where reporters, convulsed with mirth, were leaping avidly at every error.

"Yeah, they're all a bunch of bums tonight. The four of them are acting as if they never saw a card
before. Sure, it's swell!"

"One rubber, two rubbers, three rubbers, four, five."

"It's five past twelve," said the referee to the shattered four. "You agreed not to start a rubber after twelve."

So it was ended. The first night was over. Patricia forced a ghastly smile. She and Haverholt were seventeen hundred points ahead. But what a victory!

No, it was not yet ended. The screen was shoved aside, people were pushing in, were seizing at her hand, were shaking it, were congratulating her and Julian Hav-erholt. For what? For what? For the most terrible bridge that they had ever played together! Blair, rings by his scandalized supporters, was busy with a thousand alibis. Haverholt, recovering first,

was claiming victory, for his system, was rattling off the hands
where his opponents had fallen down.

Patricia was saying nothing. She had seen coming toward her, oblivious of the crowd between them,
a young man, blond and handsome,
a smile upon his face. Clark!

"Hello, Patricia."

"Hello, Clark."

Her hand was in his hand. Over-wrought, spent by the fiasco of the evening, she was still completely the mistress of herself and of the situation. He had hurt her cruelly.
He would not have that chance again. Let him make overtures if he wished. She herself would not!

"It's been a big night for you, Patricia."

"Don't say that you're congratulating me!"

She could smile now.

"But I am, Patricia, that's exactly what I'm doing."

"Such bridge," she sighed and covered her eyes with one slim
hand. "Such bridge."

He laughed. She laughed too. It was so natural, so deliciously easy.
He was talking like this to him. The tension had gone entirely in the delight of this conversation, taking place amid so many other conversations. She nodded, smiled, spoke to others but Clark lingered
at her side.

Finally, he said, glancing at her erechids, "You didn't wear my flowers."

"Did you send me flowers? There were so many," she stammered confused, inwardly exultant. "Thank you, Clark."

"I hardly thought you'd wear
them," said the man.

It was at that very instant that Patricia glimpsed toward them,
Martha March and someone else,
a fat, painted little woman,
glittering with diamonds, a fat
painted little woman, whose sharp, suspicious, triumphant eyes challenged her eyes.

Eileen Sycott! Eileen Sycott who had known her in the days when she was Patricia Warren. Eileen Sycott who knew quite well that she was not Patricia Haverholt.

It was a nightmare now. Events
must follow their chosen course; Patricia was helpless. She knew that she was trapped, that Martha March had trapped her. There was no escape. The two women who had conspired to ruin her, drew near.

"My dear, I haven't seen you for countless ages," said Eileen Sycott
in her pretty sushing little way.
She stretched out her hand. "It's wicked of you to forget your old friends so."

Casual words. Why should they make the girl turn white? Patricia tried to speak and failed. She was conscious, horribly conscious of eyes staring, staring at her ashen
face, Martha's eyes, Eileen's eyes, a hundred other eyes. Somehow, as if they sensed the tension in the air, the group about her was dissolving. She seemed to feel them go. Clark stayed on beside her.

Like an automaton, the girl accepted Eileen's plump, bejeweled hand, looked in terror over the bleached blonde head at Haverholt, failed to catch his glance. Happily unconscious, still surrounded by his supporters, he was babbling on of bridge. Martha's smile was slow, almost sleepy, a smile of utter satisfaction. Eileen was nervous. She spoke again of the ancient friendship, a little breathlessly this time.

Martha broke in.

"Then, you've met Miss Haverholt before?" she said in a peculiar voice.

Victim of Storm Off Maine's Rocky Coast

With only her superstructure serving as a monument to mark the grave of a gallant ship, the freighter Sagamore is pictured on the rocks at Prout's Neck, Old Orchard, Me. The freighter ran on the reef during a blinding snowstorm. Her crew of twenty-six were forced to abandon ship and take to the lifeboats.

FATHER PLEADS WITH KIDNAPERS

the abductors, though they received their first eye-witness explanation of the seizure from a milk
wagon driver yesterday.

James Quinehan related he had seen Bremer, though he did not know it at the time, stop his automobile for an arterial highway a block from the Summit school the day he was kidnaped. That was between 8:20 a. m. and 8:30 a. m., Quinehan said.

Another Car Stops
Suddenly another large sedan stopped squarely in front of the Bremer car and within two minutes, both cars moved off, the kidnapers machine in the lead. He could not identify any occupants of either car, he said.

Miss Louise Bremer, sister of the missing man, voiced the sentiments of the family when she declared
"money doesn't mean anything. It's all ready. We are interested in getting him back safely."

By following instructions of the kidnapers, contained in a note left on the backdoor step of Walter Magee's office, the family had disclosed it was ready to pay the full ransom. Magee, wealthy contractor, is a friend of the missing man.

Authorities were vehement that there had been no developments in the case and investigation was virtually stalemate 66 hours after the crime.

Robber Killed By Diamond Salesman

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—William Stitzel, a diamond salesman, told police he shot and killed a youth who tried to rob him last night.

Cards in the youth's pockets, police said, indicate he was Eddie Hoffman, 22, former prize fighter.

Detective Lieutenants Jerry Bain
and Al Mora, cruising in the neighborhood, told they heard shots and drove up to Stitzel's motor car just as the 48-year-old salesman opened the door and the youth's body tumbled out.

The officers covered Stitzel with pistols until he had told his story.
Stitzel said he was started to drive away from his home a youth pushed
a pistol against his back and said:
"Just get in and drive."

The salesman said he usually wore a large diamond ring, diamond studied wrist watch and a diamond stick pin but last night had left them at home.

Stitzel said the youth seized the steering wheel with his left hand to force him to turn a corner. He then wrenched the weapon from the youth's hand, stepped on the brake, pressed the pistol against the youth's stomach and fired five times.

Teacher, Hostage of Convicts, Freed

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Jan. 20.—
Lewis Dresser, rural school teacher
abducted by two prisoners who escaped from the Kansas penitentiary
yesterday, telegraphed a brother, W. A. Dresser, here today that he had been freed at Pawhuska, Okla.

The brief message from the teacher did not identify the convicts,
and gave no details of the kidnaping.

Dresser said he was driving to his home near Lansing. Presumably the convicts gave up his car which they commandeered while he was on his way to the Mission rural school near Wailula, Kas., yesterday morning.

Call Applications For Explorer Post

The United States Civil Service
commission will accept applications until Feb. 7 for 1 he position of principal agricultural explorer to fill a vacancy in the bureau of plant
industry, department of agriculture,
Washington, D. C.

The entrance salary ranges from $5,500 to $6,400 a year, less a deduction of not to exceed 15 per cent
as a measure of economy and a retirement deduction of 3 1-2 per cent.

The duties will be to plan, organize, and direct agricultural exploration in foreign countries, especially in Central and South American countries, and in high altitude areas, for the purpose of securing
new and promising crop plants
and to perform other related duties.

All states except Delaware, Iowa,
Maryland, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia have received less than their share of appointments in the apportioned departmental service at Washington.

Full information may be obtained from F. O. Heston, secretary of
the United States Civil Service
Board of Examiners, at the postoffice in this city.

THERE'S A 'LILT' and a 'TILT' TO NEW HATS

Brims, Upturned and Dipping, Featured
On the Spring
Models

By MARIE MAROT

HARBINGERS OF SPRING

are these stunning hat models we show you today. Brims tilt backwards, in the new mode, some of them right off the face, others off the face and with a dip towards the shoulder. The latter, modified off-the-face line, is good for those who cannot wear a hat that is right off the face. Pastel felts are registering and look as though they will constitute an important spring fashion. On the left is a pastel felt worn partly on the back of the cranium. It is reminiscent of the white hats worn by our sailor boys. In top center Joan Blon-dell, screen actress, wears a wide-brimmed straw, set at a rakish angle. Below is another huge wide-brimmed affair which bids fair to be popular this summer. The huge saucer-like brim is of white Milan, the tiny crown and the bit of grosgrain ribbon are of navy blue. Upper right we show a white-straw plate with a bit of feather to add to its dashing charm. Worn over one ear, it reveals a lot of hair on the opposite side.

The new between-season hats are exceedingly colorful, too, many of them showing definitely the trend for bright colorings of the Mexican type. Typical of the new offerings is a brimmed felt in corn-beige with its flattering dipped brim and its creased square crown embroidered in wool yarn in maroon, white, yellow and red.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

New Color Schemes For Home-Beautiful

Brand New Ideas

When delicate pastel shades are used, then it is nice to have a strong dash of color. For instance a pale blue cloth with delicate pink china and crystal glasses had a lovely centerpiece of black glass with masses of purple grapes. And don't forget the ornamental blue glass grapes to be found in most of the decorating departments of the stores, as well as in the restaurants. These can be used in many ways to give color to a table setting.

The main thing is to break away from the conventional and discover new ideas on yourself. Use fruits of all kinds, including bowls of nuts to help in making your a la carte. We can choose vegetables piled high in a market basket used as the centerpiece on a large table set for a luncheon. Potted plants and hothouse glass added to the picturesque effect.

Colorful Glassware

Colorful glassware is always lovely. This is the only one-color scheme that is really liked, the all-pink or all-yellow table having proved its popularity for the house. It is just all white then it is going to be color blended and in sharp contrast. Glassware is being used in a great deal and is obtainable in glorious colorings. White combined with colors is especially lovely and much milk-glass made its appearance at festive tables these past few weeks.

One of the latest luncheon tables we have seen was in dark blue and milk glass, with autumn fruits providing a splendid contrast. Another dark blue and white color scheme used a dark blue tablecloth and napkins, crystal glasses and plates and a lovely centerpiece of gardenias. Another scheme involved the use of a brown linen tablecloth with white plates and glasses and a centerpiece of golden fruits such as red bananas, russet pears and pomegranates. The effect was lovely.

Collecting Beautiful Things

The hobby of collecting beautiful things is definitely on the increase, so much so, that many picture galleries and shops that specialize in art objects, have opened bargain basements. And we know many housewives who spend their afternoons in town prowling around in these bargain basements rather than dress shops. For there is no knowing what they will pick up. We know one little suburban housewife who for years has been on the lookout for expensively placed etchings. She has bought here and there, always at a very moderate outlay, at an average of about $10 an etching, recently out of the artists' wen in a national auction, with the result that her works have risen rapidly in value. And so our little friend possesses no less than fourteen of his etchings, she is indeed fortunate, not because of the intrinsic worth of these etchings, but because she has the unerring taste that led her to recognize a master artist, long before the art world did.

Search For Beauty

Fine reproductions of silver, bits of old china, first editions, all these things are sought for a scene to those who understand. And the possession of just a few of these treasures and the love for them stamps one as truly a connoisseur as the millionaire collector who pays away fortunes at the auctions and collects, more because it is the thing to do.

If you don't want to go in for originals, watch for fine reproductions of master works. Choose those which appeal to you because of their beauty and you will automatically become a collector. Gradually you will find you will find yourself reading books on whatever artist or subject has become your favorite and you will add to your stock of knowledge in a delightful way.

The Home Kitchen

By Jeanette Young Norton

Buffet Dinners Are Part of "New Deal" for the Hostess

THERE IS a "new deal" for the hostess as well as for other folk. By it, she has more time to enjoy herself, and yet is able to serve plenty of refreshments. We have learned that hospitality does not consist merely of serving elaborate meals. Nice nibbles that can be prepared in advance make entertaining far simpler and easier today, whether it be a luncheon, a tea, or a buffet supper.

And buffet dinners are part of the new deal in hospitality, too. There are new quick tricks that are easy to make, that may be remade to replenish plates grown empty as the evening goes on, or may be served buffet style to save wear and tear on the hostess' best gown as well as her disposition.

Cheerful Idea

For instance, a grand idea both in food and decoration is to prepare a "party porcupine." This edible centerpiece is guaranteed to make any party a success. Take a large platter and make a garland or wreath around the edge, using watercress, chicory, etc., and putting apples and nut meat and stacks of vari-stuffed celery at intervals. Make the "porcupine" this way: Fasten various small foods such as anchovies, chunks of different cheeses, olives, plain and stuffed; radishes, pearl onions, cocktail sausages and sardines, all on the ends of toothpicks. Stick the other end of each toothpick into a large squash or use a mound of oranges and apples. Put this in the center of the wreathed platter and around it lay in circular formation an assortment of tiny crackers of the salty type.

Easily Prepared Canapes

There are grand canapes that may easily be prepared and left in the automatic refrigerator. Fill called for. Mash some boneless and skinless sardines to a paste; moisten with a little mayonnaise and some lemon juice. Spread this mixture on toasted whole wheat wafers before serving and decorate with pimiento stars. Nutchery is delicious and is made by mixing anchovy paste with cream cheese, and seasoning with lemon juice and salad dressing.

Add paprika to color. Spread on crackers or canape shells and sprinkle finely ground nuts on top. A grand substitute for the far richer pate de foie gras is made with liverwurst. Mix some of the sausage with lemon juice, add minced olives, onion juice and green peppers. Spread on saltine biscuits and decorate with green pepper rings.

New Ideas For Old Dishes

HERE IS a grab bag of new ideas and tidbits from the food world. We hope that you will find something for your own use in this miscellany. For instance, if your small Tommy Turkey refuses to sing for his supper he will surely sing for happiness after he has eaten this new way of doing milk toast. Beat three eggs slightly, add half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar and a cup of milk. Pour into a shallow dish. Split three shredded wheat biscuits and soak halves in the milk-egg mixture till soft. Cook in frying pan in hot butter browning on both sides. Nice for grown-up Thomas Tuckers, too.

Good Old Dish

Even if we do like to lift an eyebrow at the mention of hash, just the same it still remains one of the best ways ever to deal with left-over fowl or meat. And if you serve it with a poached egg on top it makes a tasty hash from left-over chicken, cook a finely chopped onion in two tablespoons of butter, stir into it a tablespoon of flour, cook till yellow. Then add a teaspoon of chopped parsley, half a teaspoon sugar, paprika to taste and half a cup chicken stock or three-quarters of a cup of milk or cream. Stir till it is smooth and then add two cups of chopped chicken. Serve on toast.

A New Onion Dish

Bernadette raises lovely Easter lilies, at your house informs you if you sail to its shores at the proper season. Your nose will also give you ample notice of the country's other industry—onion raising. From this land of lilies and onions, comes a nice new onion dish, a splendid way of preparing the onion. Peel and slice two and a quarter pounds of onions crosswise in thin slices and cook till tender without any salt. Drain. Then heat four tablespoons of butter in a skillet and saute onions.

Add little less than half a teaspoon of salt and a dash of pepper and turn into a casserole. Spread three-quarters of a cup spread crumbs on top and sprinkle same amount grated American cheese over all. Brown in hot oven about fifteen minutes. Serves six.

Dainty Salad

The miniature bananas known as "finger bananas" are nice and novel and are in great demand for dainty party salads. A favorite way of preparing them is as follows: Cut the peeled bananas in two, lengthwise, and put on lettuce-lined plate. Between the two halves put a mixture of chopped dates, chopped nuts bound with a little mayonnaise. Press the two halves together again, top with whipped cream mayonnaise and sprinkle with finely chopped nuts.

If you want a nice luncheon dish and your emergency shelf holds a jar of dried beef then make a cream sauce, season it well and then add the dried beef, separated. Cook in a double boiler, and at last stir in a well beaten egg. When done serve on a hot Holland rusk.

Fascism Gains Ground in Great Britain

Owen O'Duffy
Starting as a tiny stream with Benito Mussolini in 1914, Fascism has assumed the proportions of a mountain torrent that has swept through Europe under various names and vari-colored shirts. England, the last stronghold of conservatism is seen on the brink of succumbing to the new gospel with such a hide-bound member of the Old Guard as Viscount Rothermere, Great Britain's press emperor, advocating support of Sir Oswald Mosley, Black Shirt leader. Across the channel in Ireland, General Owen O'Duffy, leader of the Blue Shirts, Irish brand of Fascism, is making rapid strides since the ban placed on the organization by President De Valera was declared unconstitutional by the Free State Supreme Court. Observers predict that the next great political swing in Great Britain will be towards Fascism, Lord Rothermere's statement that it is the only way to forestall Communism being regarded as a sermon from the mount.

"Mayhem" and Romance Mingle To Get Big Send Off

Primo Carnera
Although mild mayhem is the object of his visit to these shores, the ships have it that romance was in the gargantuan heart of Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion, when he arrived at New York. He is down with Marjorie Hope Brand, of Palm Beach, Fla., to whom he is said to have paid marked attention during voyage. Primo defends his title against Tommy Loughran next month.

La Hepburn and Society Hubby

Mr. and Mrs. Ludlow Smith
Mrs. Smith is better known as Katharine Hepburn, who sky-rocketed to film fame in a few months. This is the first picture of the star with her "sette voce" husband, Ogden Ludlow Smith, son of a prominent Philadelphia family. Her marriage to Mr. Smith was unsuspected during her climb to stardom.

Takes Crack at Revaluation

Even as President Roosevelt's dollar revaluation proposals were being submitted to Congress, his former adviser, Professor O. M. W. Sprague, was photographed as he denounced the policy before the House Committee on Coinage. He is shown (left) as he testified. Representative Andrew L. Somers, of New York, chairman of the committee is at right.

Seeks Governorship Ex-Middy Rules Cuba

Mrs. Clara S. Foltz
Famous as California's leader in fight for women's suffrage, Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz, sister of former U. S. Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, has announced her intention to seek G. O. P. nomination for Governor of California.

Carlos Hevia
It is probable that this young midshipman at the U. S. Naval Academy never dreamed that one day he would rule his country when this picture was made. Carlos Hevia, newly-appointed President of Cuba, is shown at time he attended Annapolis. He is only Cuban to graduate from famous school.

Nippon's U. S. Envoy Reports

Koki Hirota
An interesting tete-a-tete in the office of Foreign Minister Koki Hirota of Japan as Katsuji Debuchi, former Nipponese Ambassador to Washington, reported to his chief on conditions in the United States, soon after his arrival in Tokyo.

"Blue Eagle" Tuna from Japan

Here is the shipment of canned tuna fish which was seized at Los Angeles on arrival from the Orient because it bore the Blue Eagle insignia although canned in Japan. N. R. A. officials are investigating charges that the recovery stickers were put on the cases after they had been unloaded from the ship.

Wives of Screendom's Greatest Lover

Leatrice Joy
Opposition to his wife's return to the screen is said to have caused the rift that parted John Gilbert, filmom's great lover, and Virginia Bruce, his fourth wife. Hollywoodites say that Virginia recently has yearned for the days when she was actively engaged in a movie career and would like to return to pursue the will-o'-the-wisp of fame on her own. Friends of the couple fear a reconciliation is doubtful, pointing to Gilbert's past marital record as testimony that he is not the "making up" kind. His first wife was Olivia Burrell, whom he married in 1918 and divorced in 1921. His second, Leatrice Joy, divorced him five years later on grounds of incompatibility, and his third, Ina Claire, did likewise in 1929. Gilbert married Miss Bruce in 1932, when she renounced the screen to "devote my life to my husband and babies." They have one child, Susan, who remains in mother's custody.

American 'Mahatma'

William Goodell
Two years of studying the credo of Mahatma Gandhi, India's man of destiny, convinced William Harrison Goodell, that there's nothing like simple living. He's shown on arrival at New Orleans, La., in Gandhi attire. He plans a nationwide tour to convert America to the gospel of "simple living."

Hoarding Denied

Declaring that "my gold is my lawful property," Miss Edith M. Thomas, daughter of former U. S. Senator Charles S. Thomas, of Colorado, protested her indictment by Federal Grand Jury at Denver on charge of hoarding $3,000 worth of the precious metal. If convicted, Miss Thomas is liable to fine of $10,000 or ten years' imprisonment.

On Ill-Fated Honeymoon Yacht

There may be something to this black cat superstition after all. This picture, made on board the pleasure yacht Alamyth, shows some of the crew with the ship's cat shortly before the craft left Staten Island, N. Y., with Mr. and Mrs. George Conklin, of Teaneck, N. J., and twelve others, on a honeymoon cruise. The voyage ended off Barnegat Light when the yacht foundered and the 14 persons were rescued by the tanker Guilford.

As Opera Lifted "Salome" Ban

Banned since 1907 when the Metropolitan Opera's production of "Salome" raised an unprecedented storm of protest, the Oscar Wilde story set to Richard Strauss' music has been revived—with certain restraints—and takes its place in the repertory again. In this scene Herod (Max Lorenz) pleads with Salome (Goeta Ljungberg) to dance for him. It is this dance, termed "shameless" in 1907, that has been sufficiently subdued to pass 1934 muster.

Salem Tossers Subdue Stubborn Alliance Foe In Rough Tilt

thrust, Wayne Siding, practically helpless from a scoring standpoint. The Red and Black quintet never really got going until midway in the third quarter when Earl Zelle, in the background, somewhat in former Quaker triumph, ran wild to tally three consecutive baskets from action.

Hardisty, tiny Aviator forward, started the scoring in the first minute of play as he tallied two free throws after being fouled in the act of shooting by Zelle. Zupanec, a newcomer in the Alliance lineup, made it 3-0 in favor of the invaders with another gift shot—he was fouled by Cope—then Zelle tallied Salem's first point, also on a foul. Charles McCloskey was given a free toss but missed and Zupanec dribbled down the court to register from action for the Aviators. This basket, incidentally, later proved the only bit of scoring Alliance was to do the entire contest from the field.

Pukalski Scores
John Pukalski came back to score on a long shot for Salem but Starks, flaky Alliance performer, tallied a foul. Ben Cope registered a free throw for Salem as the last score of the period which closed with Alliance in front, 6-4. It was the first time this season that the Quakers were on the short end of the score at the close of the opening stanza of play.

Siding, following through on a shot by Cope, battled the ball through the hoop to even the count at 6-4 but Alliance again forced to the front, 7-6, with a free throw by Seufis. Siding made good on one out of two charity tosses to again knot the score then, seconds later, Salem took the lead for the first time as Pukalski tallied his second basket from long range. Siding made it 10-7 with a free toss but Hardisty got the point back via another gift effort. Siding, coming out of a heap of players under his own basket, tipped the leather through the hoop and the Quakers were in front, 12-8, at halftime.

Zelle Starts Scoring
Zelle, who had been replaced by Kaercher in the first period but returned into the fray as a replacement for Cope in the second, started on his scoring spree early in the third session and quickly shot in two field baskets that put

Record String of Ice Warriors

Playing together for the eighth consecutive year, this original five of the New York Rangers hockey team seem to have established something of a record in the world of professional sport by going through eight seasons without replacements. They are, left to right, Frank Boucher, Bill Cook, captain, Bun Cook, Murray Murdoch and the veteran Ching Johnson.

Pitt Books Stiff Schedule

By BERNARD NILES
United Press Staff Correspondent

A chance to revenge two thorough whippings by University of Southern California teams was thrown into the lap of Dr. Jack Sutherland, University of Pittsburgh football coach, when the 1934 schedule was made up.

The schedule opens with two good eastern opponents—Washington & Jefferson and West Virginia—which will give Pitt hard games and put the players in condition for the Trojans who come here Oct. 13.

Approximately 90,000 fans will overflow the Pitt Stadium to see the Trojans, whose teams easily whipped great Pitt teams in Rose Bowl games in 1932 and 1933.

Both years Sutherland headed his teams westward confident of making a game of it, but both times the Trojans romped to victories. In 1932 it was 47-14 and three years later 35-0.

Some critics blamed Pitt's showing on the heat, others on the team's mental condition and still others on the strenuous train ride. Sutherland made no alibi.

This year, however, the situation will be reversed. The Trojans must come eastward via train and probably encounter weather contrasting sharply with that on the coast.

Pitt once before revenge a Rose Bowl defeat when it brought Stanford here in 1932 and won 7-6. Stanford defeated a Pitt team 7-6 in 1928.

Pitt's schedule, containing four recognized sectional leaders, will give it an undisputed national championship, provided the Panthers can negotiate the nine games without defeat or tie.

Besides the Pacific coast team, Pitt will meet two Missouri valley opponents, one from the mid-west, and four good eastern teams.

The Gophers of Minnesota come to the stadium the Saturday after Southern California. Minnesota was undefeated and the only team to win from Pitt last year.

The only "breather" on the schedule, Westminster, follows the Gopher game and then Elmer Layden will return to Pittsburgh to show his many friends here what he can do with Notre Dame material.

The Notre Dame game will afford Pitt a chance to be the first team to defeat the Irish in three consecutive years.

Following Notre Dame are the Cornhuskers of Nebraska, who will be met on their own gridiron Nov. 10, at Lincoln. Pitt then travels to Baltimore for a return game with Navy and closes the season Thanksgiving Day against Carnegie Tech, its city rival.

EAST PALESTINE HIGH VICTIM IN UPSET OF DOPE

Struthers Squad Trims Vaunted Columbiana County Five, 25-20

Struthers High's unbeaten basketball quintet staged one of the N. E. district's most surprising dope upsets in a victory by a 25-20 score over a previously undefeated East Palestine five at Struthers Friday night.

The battle was close and hard fought all the way with the lads of Denny Schill out in front to win with points to spare in closing minutes of play.

Close defensive play of both teams was a feature.

After French Trapped Swindler

Serge Stavisky

Close to death from self-inflicted bullet wounds after French police trapped him in mountain retreat, Serge Stavisky, found to be swindler when Bayonne bank and municipal pawnshop collapsed with loss of $40,000,000, is shown in Chamonix hospital shortly before efforts to save his life failed. Scandal brought French government near overthrow.

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brisbane

COLONEL TAKAHASHI, military attache of the Japanese embassy at Peking, says, "If Russia wants to fight, we are ready for war immediately." Japan, says he, does not want to fight, but "we are unable to tolerate the eastward expansion policy of the Soviets, which is intended to limit all eastern Asia Red."

Colonel Takahashi refers to the Red tint of communistic doctrine.
If Japan should start war with Russia, there would be red of another kind, caused by dropping bombs from Japanese and Russian planes, a "red" tint older than the theories of Karl Marx.

LORD BEAVERBROOK'S London
Express says five Russian girls
sent to prison for two months, accepted presents from foreign sailors.
There was no question of morals.
Russian girls must not fall in love with representatives of capitalist countries, because "taking a present is equal to conspiracy against the Russian state."

The first Catherine of Russia is supposed to have saved from capture Peter the Great, who changed
her from a laundress to an empress, by bribing a Turkish general
with her magnificent jewelry.

What would modern Russia say about that?

MR. WALLACE, secretary of agriculture, predicts an increase in American farm incomes this year of $2,500,000,000, or $100 each for 25, 000,000 farmers, a sum worth while.
Of course, other citizens will pay
these $2,500,000,000, for you can't take two billions out of thin air.

Besides the two billions extra,
the government will hand to farmers this year $750,000,000 in rental and benefit payments connected with plowing under crops or ab-staining from planting them. The consumer and the taxpayer will
"absorb" these amounts.

THE FARMERS have one small fly in the prosperity ointment. Farm hired men are going to work for Uncle Sam's CWA. Government made-to-order jobs, intended for the "improvised and unemployed"
are taken by the men that leave industries and farms to get the government's better pay and easy work.

With a farmer watching you must work. On a government job, you work just hard enough to keep from freezing, which is better, in the opinion of many.

Here and There About Town

Rehearse Play

The lecture hour was given over to a rehearsal of a one-act play,
"On the Dotted Line" at a meeting of Salem grange Friday evening at the hall, Depot rd.

Characters in the play are: Mr.
and Mrs. Willis Zimmerman, F. L.
Vincent, Mrs. Willis McArthur, Mrs.
Paul Wims and George Hawkins.

This play will be given at the farmers institute here next Wednesday afternoon.

Salem grange will hold its next meeting in two weeks.

Masonic Club Activities

Much interest has been shown in the Masonic Temple club activities this winter. The first half of the bowling schedule will be completed soon, and preparations are under way for the continuation of interact as the new schedule gets under way.

Plans for a bridge tournament are being given much attention and many players are expected to enter.
Privileges of the club are now open to all Masons within the jurisdiction of the Salem bodies.

At County Meet

Nine members of the Salem unit
attended a meeting of the American Legion auxiliary county council
Friday evening at East Palis-sade. In the group were Mrs. H.
P. Litty, Mrs. Carl Frantz, Mrs. E.
E. Apple, Mrs. E. J. Rich, Mrs. W.
W. Andrews, Mrs. Charles Kennedy, Mrs. Paul Probert, Mrs. Vaughn
Yates and Mrs. Ralph Sturgeon.

A musical program was presented and lunch served. The next county meeting will be on Feb. 16 at Wells-ville.

Memorial Bidding Service

Rev. E. W. Davis will discuss the subject, "The Baptism With the Holy Ghost—What Is It?" Sunday afternoon at the interdenominational
meeting in the Memorial building
under auspices of the Christian Masonic alliance.

It is expected that the Youngstown Gospel Tabernacle choir will take part in the musical program.

City Hospital Notes

Mr. and Mrs. John Brudely,

North Benton, are the parents of a daughter, born this morning at the Salem City hospital.

Amos Hopley, Salem, has entered the hospital for surgical treatment.

Cagers Guests At Theater

Members of the Salem High varsity and reserve basketball teams
this afternoon were to be guests of the State theater management at the showing of the Joe E. Brown comedy, "Son of a Sailor."

Unity Bible Class

A special feature has been arranged for a session Sunday morning of the Unity Bible class of the Methodist Episcopal church. All the members are asked to be present.

Cottage Prayer Meeting

A cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Schuster, 194 Rose ave., at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. Sunday. Rev. Jess West of Canton, will be in charge.

Capture 5 Youths In Illinois Robbery

(By Associated Press)

QUINCY, Ill., Jan. 20.—Five Chicago youths, objects of an all-day
hunt in which a posse of 350 men trapped them in a woods, were in jail at Carthage, today, and approximately $3,400 of the money taken in a robbery of the State bank of Girard, Ill., was recovered.

Four of the quintet, with arms
upraised, marched out of a woods on a farm near Basco, Ill., last night and into the waiting arms of the possemen. The fifth was captured shortly afterward as he attempted to gallop away on a stolen horse in the fashion of the James boys of a by-gone day.

Two of the youths, Harlan Mas-carella, 20, and Emil Digger, had been wounded, but not seriously,
during their desperate attempt to out-run their pursuers. Mascarella was shot through the hand, and Digger had a facial wound.

The others taken into custody
identified themselves as Howard Mascarella, brother of Harlan;
Vincent Digger, 19, brother of Emil,
and Jesse Sumnerman, 20.

Will Rogers' "Dr. Skitch" Begins Week of Film Engagements at State

The happy Skitches! Papa Skitch, back there with the do-or-die look, is Will Rogers. The lady on his right, looking longingly to the east, is Zasu Pitts. The girl with only half her right eye showing is Rochelle Hudson. They are the leads in the new Fox production,
"Mr. Skitch."

FIVE pictures go to make up the theater programs for the state and Grand this coming week—and each
is of an entirely different class.
There is comedy first and then excitement, mystery, romance, drama
and thrills.

Will Rogers Sunday

Coming to the State Sunday and Monday is the Will Rogers-Zasu
Pitts first co-starring film, "Mr.
Skitch."

These two should certainly make a good pair with no
more to be asked for as far as comedy is concerned.

With "Mr.
and Mrs. Skitch" are Rochelle Hudson, Florence Desmond (the clever impersonator of stars heard over the Rudy Vallee hour several weeks ago), Harry Green, Eugene Pallette and Charles Starrett.

This is the screen adaptation of Anne Cameron's popular story,
"Green Dice."

The plot details
the adventures of a typical American family which takes to the road
in their flivver after the depression
has ended them of all their other possessions.

Of course, they encounter all sorts of adventures; most of them unexpected and all of them hilarious.

Good Film Wednesday

Following "Dr. Skitch" is a very popular film entitled "Should Ladies Behave" with Lionel Barry-
more, Alice Brady, Conway Tearle, Katherine Alexander, Mary Carlisle
and William Janney.

This is one of those pictures noted for its clever dialogue and lovely photography. It boasts an excellent cast.

Barrymore and Miss Brady
are man and wife and Miss Carlisle their daughter. Everyone loves the wrong person in this scintillating story.

Young Janney
loves Miss Carlisle who in turn is fascinated by man-of-the-world Tearle who is loved by the youngest girl.

Charles Farrell and Marguerite Cherill return to the screen via the same picture, "Girl Without a Room" to play the State Thursday
only.

With the two are Charles Ruggles, Gregory Ratoff and Walter Wolf.

The story takes place in gay Paris in the artists colony where Farrell goes to make good as a painter.

His success comes very slowly as does his romance
with Miss Churchill.

There should be plenty of fun
in this one with the habitual
"picture stealer" Charles Ruggles again cast as a tipsy person who just can't stay sober.

Kong's Son

The sequel to the great picture,
"King Kong," is scheduled for the State on Friday and Saturday with
"Son of Kong."

Again Robert
Armstrong is cast in the lead and this time he is ably assisted by Hein Mack, Frank Reicher, John
